

https://www.thestar.com/politics/provincial/sunshine-list-of-100-000-earners-jumps-by-10-4-per-cent/article_bcba9a67-20e4-5c17-81c6-e67599500c1d.html

Home / Politics / Provincial Politics

PROVINCIAL POLITICS

Sunshine List of $100,000 earners jumps by 10.4 per cent

In a surprise Friday afternoon move during a pandemic that has crippled the province, the Ontario government released the annual “Sunshine List” of public servants earning $100,000 or more.

March 20, 2020

Treasury Board President Peter Bethlenfalvy, who is in isolation with symptoms of COVID-19, said the Ontario government has “made commitments to the people of Ontario on transparency, accountability and respecting their tax dollars.”

Rene Johnston / Toronto Star

By Robert Benzie Queen's Park Bureau Chief

In a surprise Friday afternoon move during a pandemic that has crippled the province, the Ontario government released the annual “Sunshine List” of public servants earning $100,000 or more.

Please disable your ad blocker or subscribe to read more.

SAVE $73 ON A STAR SUBSCRIPTION

Only $1/week for 52 weeks

Cancel anytime.

GET THIS OFFER

Already a Subscriber? Sign in Robert Benzie is the Star's Queen's Park bureau chief and a reporter covering Ontario politics. Follow him on Twitter: @robertbenzie.

Related Stories

Taxpayer group reveals 43,000 Quebec bureaucrats earn $100,000 or more

OPG workers dodge Tories' cap on wage hikes until 2022

The sunshine list you don't know about: It's for Ontario horse racing and tops out at $751,000

REPORT AN ERROR

JOURNALISTIC STANDARDS

ABOUT THE STAR
